LAW ENFORCEMENT MEETING

Judge Stamper Announces Drastic Policy

A meeting of prominent citizens was held at the M.E. Church Sunday afternoon to hear C. A. Ellis, field secretary of the Anti-Saloon League for Kentucky of Paris, and Judge J. T. Stamper tell of bootlegging, moon shining and its suppression.

After singing "Nearer My God to Thee," Rev. A. A. Ford of the Christian Church, led in prayer. Rev. John Owen Gross spoke briefly on the Anti-Saloon League and said the church must not fail in its support of that organization.

Mr. Ellis said the Anti-Saloon League is an organization of the church founded in 1903. During the past two years the organization has done much to awaken the churches to the danger embraced in the well organized, liquor traffic forces which are striving thru the beer and wine admission move to bring back the saloon. The League, he claimed, is responsible for the passage thru the Assembly of the prohibition act with teeth in it, including heavy fines, peace bonds and hard labor. He said that French wine makers supplied $4,000,000 to be used by the wets in the November election and showed how the latter had lost out in the election. He said that most of the opposition to prohibition comes from a foreign population other than Anglo-Saxon, and un-American.

Rev. John Owen Gross in introducing Judge Stamper, thanked God that we have one Judge who will do his duty.

Judge Stamper said he wished to speak on things nearest his own heart and was disappointed that he did not see some present whom he hoped to see there. He found great encouragement for the nation in the fact that President Harding had announced his intention to put the full power of the government behind the prohibition forces, and that "his-ers" are as much to blame as bootleggers.

The speaker said every office should be willing to lay his life on the altar of duty to defend the Constitution of the United States. "When I find a man who is against the Volstead act I do not find the best type and those who defend them are not the best element. The liquor law breakers are organized and instead of a black hand they have a Black Ring, sworn to and proven by men in my office. If one of them should try and break the ring they will try and swear him to the penitentiary, or, in their own words, send him to hell. We have broken the Black Ring and have most of them in jail."

Judge Stamper commended the county executives who with W. H. Green, enforcement officer, have become regular bloodhounds at tracking the path from the still to the house, after which they arrest the moonshiner and take him in.

"The people are afraid to come in and tell facts and can you blame them since whole communities are swallowed up in this thing. One man who was being prodded by the Commonwealth and County Attorneys to make him tell, put his arms around my neck and begged that they do not force him to tell because they (the moonshiners) would kill him. I said, 'No, tell who you are afraid of and I will see they don't hurt you,' and inside of an hour I had five of them under $5,000 peace bonds.

"Where it was known men had threatened, your executives acted and W. H. Green took them before the Federal Court where they were put under $5,000 to $7,500 peace bond and when they get thru they will be satisfied and no one need be afraid of them.

"Justice delayed is justice denied. Circuit courts are too far apart; there is too much on the docket to try in sixty days. I have been watching courts of the land for a number of years and I have seen men of influence get into trouble. A number of friends and a big array of lawyers are present and if the man has money they will try and wear the case out. A murderer finds friends, money and resources, but who comes to defend the widows and orphans. In our own court I saw a poor man hastened to trial and quickly sentenced. (Justly, I think,) and in the same court, men with influence and money got their cases put off. I am not criticizing the Circuit Court. That's their business, not mine.

"I am sorry for those who go to jail and part of the blame is ours for not contributing the Gospel of Jesus Christ. These people will be reached only when they hear those who preach the gospel publicly and the divine spirit of God enters their hearts.

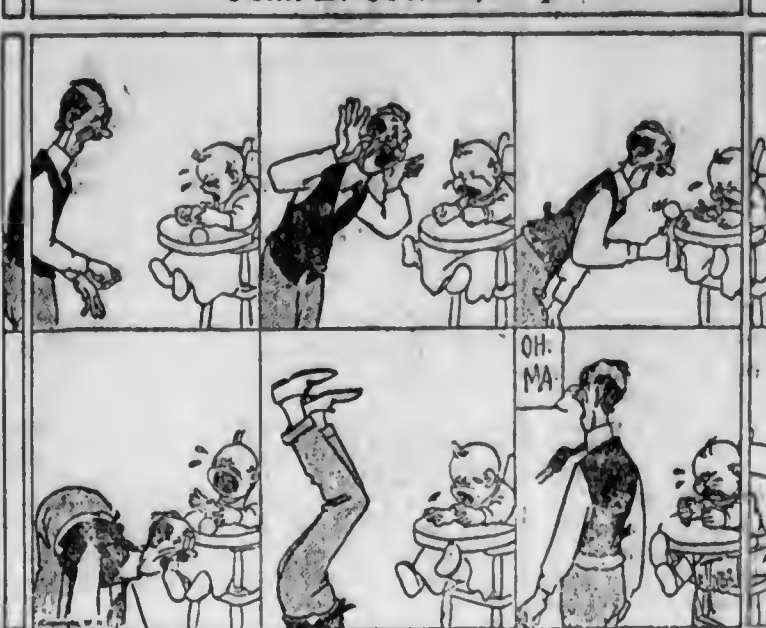

"Only when we get public sentiment, judges, officers and juries behind this thing shall we clean it up. A short time ago we learned that a man was coming in by auto carrying liquor and another man with him. He was arrested and asked to fill bend, couldn't, but asked that the other man take his auto back. He was put in jail, the car locked up and officers went to his place and found a still and a gallon of whiskey in three hours. There may be some deputies who are not all right and some magistrates who are not trying to protect the public but they are a minority.

"I have given instructions to the sheriff to select for jury service men and women of intelligence who can see the right when it comes before them and do the right when they see it. The bootlegger and the moonshiner will get no mercy from me while he continues to sin.

"If the Circuit Court will do its best we can clean up the trouble. If it does not, then we are going up every hollow and sweep it clean, bring them in and then go after them.

"Those U. S. legislators who do not believe in prohibition should be sent to the interior of China and missionaries be sent to preach to the heathen. While I believe in missions, we are overlooking work at home. We must save America if America is to save the world.

"I am looking beyond the men who go to jail to the other mountain homes where they want to do right, to the women and to the children. Shall the moonshiner go back and destroy them? NO! Women come to my office and beg for relief. They say these fellows will burn our homes and kill our husbands. We are going to make it safe for them.

"I want to be able to say from my soul, 'The Sun Shines Bright on My Old Kentucky Home' in Knox county. You do your part and we shall succeed."

Rev. John Owen Gross said the sun always shines bright after the moonshine is gone and appealed to each man present to give of his time for jury service when called upon. Then give the moonshiner what is coming to him. Stand by law and order or let us keep still about conditions. We get just what we want.

BRIGHT HOME BURNS

The home of Mrs. Susan Bright was destroyed Saturday night and the fire created considerable excitement, since, being across the track from the L. & N. depot, it was at first believed by many that it was the depot itself that was on fire.

The fire broke out toward 8 o'clock and Mrs. Bright had to be rescued thru a window as she was cut off from egress thru the door. Hiram Jones also found himself in the same predicament. Being a somewhat flimsy structure, the flames spread rapidly and the water thrown on the blazing home had but little effect. The restaurant next door was saved.

WHITE L. MOSS AGAIN ASPIRES TO SENATE

Senator White L. Moss was in Barbourville Thanksgiving accompanied by Mrs. Moss and the Advocate reporter had the pleasure of hearing from Senator Moss that he would be a candidate to succeed himself. He also states that the grading and ditching contract for the Barbourville-Corbin road will be let by the State Highway Commission, Dec. 20, thus ensuring the speedy building of the highway between the two cities.

A little imagination will carry the mind to a condition in Kentucky where good roads, the arteries of agricultural success, social happiness and religious growth will run over the length and breadth of the State. With this in mind, too, it is good news to hear that Senator Moss, the biggest good roads "crank" will again be at the helm in the Assembly. There are enough other cranks in the mountains to send him there with orders to go get 'em.

ing every influence to prevent a hitch in the good roads program and thus far he has succeeded. It is safe to say, however, that Senator Moss will not be contented with what has been done to date, but, with other proponents of good roads, will help map out a program that will lift Kentucky out of its ruts and bogs.

When this is done, the State will enjoy a measure of agricultural prosperity, social intercourse, larger education and general improvement that will put Kentucky on a level with those states which, thru economic conditions, have outstripped her.

OLD ONE, BUT ALWAYS GOOD FOR ONE LAUGH

The Hazard Herald says that J. H. of Louisville wants to know if he is his own grandfather.

Listen to this: "I married a widow who had a grown-up daughter. My father visited our home and fell in love with my stepdaughter and married her. My father became my son-in-law, my stepdaughter my mother because she was my father's wife.

Afterward, when my son came, he was my father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my stepmother. He was also my father's grandson.

My father's wife, that is, my stepmother had a son. He was of course my brother, also my grandson, for he was the son of my daughter.

"My wife was my grandmother because she was my father's wife's mother; that is, my mother's mother. So at the same time I am the husband and a grandchild of my wife and as the husband of a person's grandmother is a grandfather it seems I have a right to become my own grandfather. Am I right?"

WHY, SURE!

Mr. J. N. R. Francis, J. P., a frequent visitor to America from England, has just issued a statement in that country saying that he saw nothing of the discontent alleged to exist in America because of prohibition. "I am bound in all honesty to say that during my short visit the discontent which I expected to find in no way came under my notice," said Mr. Francis. Mr. Francis complained of the high price of soft drinks in Great Britain. "What makes prohibition work smoothly in America," he says, "is that you can always get a cool, clear glass of water for nothing."

KI WANIS TONIGHT JONES HOTEL 6:30 O'CLOCK BE THERE!

AS TO GOLF

It was reported Monday that J. Q. Redding was killed at the 18th hole on the golf links one day last week and died a horrid death. Allegations have been made by certain alligators that the crepe which signifies mourning was hung on his door, whether by the alleged alligators or by J. Q. ain't exactly clear, but said alligators state that J. Q. has been offered a reward, amounting to the Advocate, to appear at the drug store and talk golf.

Knowing Texans as we do, we solemnly assert our belief that J. Q. ain't afraid of nuthin' from a cayuse down to a frozen Esquimaux and also that if he feels like talking, he will talk and no one can stop him. No Texan we have known has been dumb and furthermore, he has let the world know it. This is a serious matter, but we believe that J. Q. will dispel the allegation and scorn the alligator. Let the Lone Star sing wave.

OPERETTAS AT UNION COLLEGE

The Nicholasville News has the following complimentary note on the work of Mr. H. M. Campbell, who is director of the choir at the Christian Church of that place.

"Mr. Campbell is delighting our people with his splendid chorus work and delightful solos. His voice is well trained and musical and he puts his heart into it. In all of his work there is an appealing sympathy and passion that grips his hearer."

Mr. Campbell has been engaged to assist with the operettas which will be staged under the direction of Mrs. F. A. Nunvar at Union College on December 16th. These operettas are a high quality of music and Mrs. Nunvar was unable to secure a suitable baritone here.

"We'll Have to Mortgage the Farm" and "Muffs, or a Husband's Mistake" are the two operettas that will be given in costume and the musical comedy, "The County Fair."

Mr. Campbell will also give some excellent solos and there will be other features presented on a most entertaining program.

ENTERS NEW FIELD

S. H. Jones has bought the stock yards at Richmond and will move his family there shortly.

While it is to be regretted that we are to lose this family it is hoped by their many friends that their new home will prove a pleasant one and that Mr. Jones will meet with success in this larger field of activity.

GIVE THEM A SQUARE DEAL

The L. & N. R. R. is spending millions of dollars to promote business thru this section and give Eastern Kentucky an outlet for its vast deposits of coal. Give the Company a square deal in the matter of right of way and do not force condemnation proceedings, which may leave bad feelings on both sides.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

Mrs. W. D. Clark entertained on Wednesday with a chicken dinner in honor of her daughter's birthday, Mrs. C. F. Heldrick. At the table with Mr. and Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Heldrick were Mr. and Mrs. Milo Richards, Mary Agnes, Charles and Bob Heldrick, Pat O'Hara and F. A. Steffanick.

Douglas Riley and Boh Riley, of Harlan, spent the Thanksgiving season with their sister Mrs. Gibb Lusk, of Barbourville, and Mrs. Grover Lanham, of Corbin.

WHAT I AM THANKFUL FOR

The following essay was written by Little Miss Mildred Evans in her English class (B. B. I.) It is one of the best essays in her class and deserves to be placed here for its real worth.

"I will mention only a few of the things I am most thankful for in life.

First, I am grateful for all the blessings upon us each and every day such as the air we breathe, sunshine and rain, the flowers and fruit and many, many other blessings.

Second, I am grateful for my good health and splendid appetite.

Third, I am thankful that I live in a town where I can attend Sunday School.

Fourth, I am thankful that I have a mind to study and learn and use the same mind for play too.

I am thankful that Thanksgiving is almost here but I am sorry for all the turkeys'.

NEW COAL OPERATION AT ELYS

The Kenowah-Knox Coal Company is putting in a $75,000 mining plant at Elys on a 1,000 acre lease which carries the Straight Creek seam, as yet untouched. This seam is known the world over as a high grade domestic coal, running from 33 to 44 inches. They are now working three shifts a day, driving entries and putting ways for the purpose of having plenty of room for tipples and conveyors. This work alone will take from four to five months. Quite a large number of miners will be employed.

AFTER FOUR YEARS

Barbourville Testimony Remains
Unshaken

Time is the best test of truth.
Here is a Barbourville story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

Mrs. Bertha Steele, Pitzer St., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and gladly recommend them.
My back was so weak I could hardly do anything. I felt run down and miserable. The action of my kidneys was irregular and my ankles and limbs became swollen. I used Doan's Kidney Pills from the Costello Drug Company and they helped me by relieving the backaches and other symptoms of kidney trouble."

Mrs. Steele gave the above statement on November 6, 1916, and on March 11, 1921, she added: "I have not taken Doan's Kidney Pills for a long time. They have so strengthened my back and kidneys that I am free from the trouble. I gladly confirm the statement I made in praise of Doan's in 1916."

HELEN WAGGONER

Miss Helen Waggoner, popular entertainer, will appear on the local Lyceum course Thursday evening, December 14th, at Union College, in a program consisting of clever character impersonations and a complete one act play, "Mrs. Pat and the Law."

Miss Waggoner is a young woman of poise and interesting personality who puts into her readings a brilliance and dramatic fire that have won approval from both public and press.

The Atchison, Kan., Globe recently said: "The old saying, 'A prophet is not without honor save in his own country,' is exploded as far as Atchison and Helen Waggoner are concerned. Last evening she was given an ovation which displayed the pride her home town feels in one of its girls who has made good Her audience of last night does not wonder that this season she is to be sent out alone (without any supporting artists) by the Redpath Bureau. She was particularly captivating in her rendition of Irvin Cobb's 'Quality Folks' a human-interest story, half of which is in negro dialect."

Miss Waggoner has been secured for the course here through the above-mentioned Redpath Bureau, under whose management she is appearing with marked success.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.
December 1, 1922.

My dear editor:

Thru your columns, I wish to thank my friends again and again for their support. While very few Republicans felt that there was any race on and there was a small vote, and while Mr. Sipple spent a very large sum of money, yet I received nearly three times as many votes as Mr. Sipple and more than ten times as many votes as Mr. Seavey.

In 1920 I received all the votes cast for Congress in two precincts.
This year I received all the votes cast in seventeen precincts. So thoroughly convinced were the Republicans that there was no necessity to make a fight this year that in many Republican precincts no election at all was held.

I feel that practically every Republican would have been at the polls if he had thought it necessary.
It looks now as if I shall be the Chairman of a Committee in the next Congress. I think this is the first time this honor has come to the 11th District.

It is my earnest desire that I may be of more effective service to the people of our District in the next two years than I have in the past.
I want to help our people in every way I can.

Thanking my friends again for their splendid help and loyal support, I remain

Sincerely,
J. M. ROBSON.

bourville Monday.

The bride is the daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Charles Walker and is a teacher and stenographer by profession, having been employed in the Tye law offices for two years. She has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Waler for the past three years. She is a young lady of great charm as well as strong commonsense.

Mr. King is a valued employee of

CLATH NEWS

Ben McNeil, of Brummett, Whitely County, was a guest of his sister, Mrs. Speed Gatlin and Mr. Gatlin last Sunday night.

G. A. Gatlin has a new barn going up. When completed it will be a great improvement to his farm.

James Henson, of Rockhold, who has been doing some repair work and painting Speed Gatlin's house, has gone home, but expects to return next week to complete the work. Richard Killian is assisting him.

J. E. Evans bought an Angus calf from W. B. Siler.

Speed Gatlin sold two red pole calves to Garret Teague.

W. T. McNeil, of Brummett, gave his sister, Mrs. Speed Gatlin, three young Plymouth Rock roosters.

Richard Killian has a sow that has ten little O. I. C. pigs.

One of Speed Gatlin's Red Pole cow has a fine male calf.

J. G. Evans had the misfortune to lose a fine cow. She swam the river and was tangled in some grape vines. Mrs. Sam Mays, Anndy Logan and a Cox boy saw her but were unable to rescue her.

S. G. Mays bought a small strip of land from John Gatlin. A pass way cuts it off from Gatlin's farm. Andy Fox, son-in-law of Mr. Mays, contemplates living in the house.

Mrs. Alice Mackey, of Williamsburg, spent Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. James Brown, at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. B. Siler. Mrs. Brown, who is an invalid, celebrated her 80th birthday Nov. 10.

Speed Gatlin quietly celebrated his 79th birthday Nov. 16.

"Aunt Martha" Sharp celebrated her 93rd birthday Nov. 19th. She had as dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Speed Gatlin, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Killian, T. C. Sharp of Mackey Bend, her only living son, Luther Sharp, Bryan Johnson of Williamsburg and James Henson, of Rockhold. Her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Smith, and Mr. Smith with whom she lives, serves dinner in honor of her birthday and some of her relatives look forward to that day and it has become a holiday for them. She is very feeble and while she said she was feeling well that day they all feared they might not be many more.

Sylvia, the little four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. McKeehan, died Sunday morning, Nov. 26, of diphtheria and was buried on Monday at the Mackey graveyard. She is survived by her parents, four brothers and six sisters.

Lafayette Rogers, on returning home from the store Nov. 3, found his wife, commonly known as "Aunt Zelma," lying on the floor dead. She had not been well for some time but was doing her housework. While it is not known how it occurred it is supposed she dropped dead. She had been turning and had a fire in the cook stove and it appears she was at the stove and fell, striking her head against a table. They were natives of Tennessee but have lived around here for a number of years. They had been keeping house for the Sharp brothers (orphans) for the past two years. She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Sullivan, of Woodbine, and Mrs. Sylvester Hatfield. She was buried Sunday Nov. 5, at Craig's Chapel in the presence of the largest audience it is claimed ever attended a funeral in the country. Rev. Jeff Perkins preached the funeral sermon. Mrs. Rogers had been a member of the Methodist Church for a number of years. Mr. Rogers has gone to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Sullivan, at Woodbine.

TUBERCULOSIS DECREASING

Compilation of figures just completed shows that pneumonia and tuberculosis, two of the diseases which formerly were responsible for the most deaths in Kentucky, had fewer victims in 1921 than in any year since the establishment of the State Board of Health's Bureau of Vital Statistics, J. F. Blackerby, Registrar of Vital Statistics, announced here today.

As a result of this reduction, from 150.4 to 129.2 per 100,000 in the case of tuberculosis, Kentucky, according to Mr. Blackerby, probably will climb out of its unenviable position as the third State in which most deaths are caused by tuberculosis. The reduction in the pneumonia death rate from 117.5 in 1920 to 84.4 in 1921.

This is the new church near Girdler.—The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Barnes is very sick.—The ladies of this place have been having quilting parties and are getting a lot of quilting done besides having a good time. The last one was given by Miss Ester Hibbard and her mother. They had up ten quilts. A fine dinner with fifteen or twenty ladies present made a good time.—Rev. W. G. Bolton has moved to Laurel County near Tuttle post office.—Miss Mary Jackson has been visiting Miss Grace for the week-end.—Enoch Smith and Lulle Crawford eloped a few days ago and went to Cumberland Gap where they were married. We wish them many happy days.—Cagle Stacy brought his bride to see the home folks over Saturday and Sunday. We wish them a long and happy life and an easy one.—Beatrice, Mary and Speed Carty are visiting Botner Burnett's family at Rockhold this week.—John Lee, our new merchant, successor to G. W. Hammons, is having a good trade.—Lester Jackson is clerking for W. N. Epperson who is having a good trade. DAISY.

One of Speed Gatlin's Red Pole cow has a fine male calf.

J. G. Evans had the misfortune to lose a fine cow. She swam the river and was tangled in some grape vines. Mrs. Sam Mays, Anndy Logan and a Cox boy saw her but were unable to rescue her.

S. G. Mays bought a small strip of land from John Gatlin. A pass way cuts it off from Gatlin's farm. Andy Fox, son-in-law of Mr. Mays, contemplates living in the house.

Mrs. Alice Mackey, of Williamsburg, spent Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. James Brown, at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. B. Siler. Mrs. Brown, who is an invalid, celebrated her 80th birthday Nov. 10.

Speed Gatlin quietly celebrated his 79th birthday Nov. 16.

"Aunt Martha" Sharp celebrated her 93rd birthday Nov. 19th. She had as dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Speed Gatlin, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Killian, T. C. Sharp of Mackey Bend, her only living son, Luther Sharp, Bryan Johnson of Williamsburg and James Henson, of Rockhold. Her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Smith, and Mr. Smith with whom she lives, serves dinner in honor of her birthday and some of her relatives look forward to that day and it has become a holiday for them. She is very feeble and while she said she was feeling well that day they all feared they might not be many more.

Sylvia, the little four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. McKeehan, died Sunday morning, Nov. 26, of diphtheria and was buried on Monday at the Mackey graveyard. She is survived by her parents, four brothers and six sisters.

Lafayette Rogers, on returning home from the store Nov. 3, found his wife, commonly known as "Aunt Zelma," lying on the floor dead. She had not been well for some time but was doing her housework. While it is not known how it occurred it is supposed she dropped dead. She had been turning and had a fire in the cook stove and it appears she was at the stove and fell, striking her head against a table. They were natives of Tennessee but have lived around here for a number of years. They had been keeping house for the Sharp brothers (orphans) for the past two years. She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Sullivan, of Woodbine, and Mrs. Sylvester Hatfield. She was buried Sunday Nov. 5, at Craig's Chapel in the presence of the largest audience it is claimed ever attended a funeral in the country. Rev. Jeff Perkins preached the funeral sermon. Mrs. Rogers had been a member of the Methodist Church for a number of years. Mr. Rogers has gone to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Sullivan, at Woodbine.

CONCRETE STREET A SUCCESS

The street across the river known as Caudill Avenue is now completely surfaced with concrete, and what a difference! Where beforetime was mud and rocks, more mud and bad holes, there is now an unbroken line of beautiful cement paving. The only fly in the ointment is the fact that some 250 yards at the end of the street, where it fails to connect with the County road is still a horrible piece of road—as bad as may be wished for anywhere. From what can be gathered there is a dispute as to whether this stretch belongs to the city or county and, as a consequence, it is a piece of orphaned road no good to anyone. It is hoped that an amicable arrangement will be arrived at either for macadamizing or cementing this blank (some use stronger language) stretch of road, so that it may not remain as a weak link in the system. We feel sure that this will be done.

World and the Woman

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(© 1912, Western Newspaper Union.)

Hale stood upon the highest point of his property, surveying life.

The highest point was just six feet above the level of the sea. The lowest point was about six feet below. But the palm-trees were so scattered and the mangroves so dwarfed that Hale could see clear to the encircling waters.

Over them a boat was coming. Hale swore.

He did not want company. He would warn off the intruders. He hurried down to his strip of aliver beach and assumed an angry look.

In reality Hale could not look very angry. It is impossible to look angry at twenty-nine, when you are the owner of an island kingdom.

As the boat drew near Hale saw that it was pulled by a single occupant, a girl, with copper-colored hair and white arms. She did not see Hale until the boat grounded. Then she sprang ashore and gasped:

"Goodness, I didn't know anybody lived on Shell Key!"

"I am the owner of Shell Key," said Hale grimly.

"I'm sorry I trespassed. You see, I—I wanted a place to be alone."

Hale softened. "Won't you come up to my cabin and have a cup of tea?" he asked. "That is, if you don't mind condensed milk."

She laughed. She had pretty gray eyes and a delightful smile, though she looked a little sad, Hale thought. She sat down on the camp stool, and soon the tea was ready.

"You see," she explained, "I was a school-teacher, but my throat got bad, and the doctors were afraid of tuberculosis. So they sent me down to Florida. And it isn't tuberculosis at all, and I'm getting better, but you see there's the cough, and the boarding-houses are afraid of coughs down here, so—so none of them would take me. It's so hard to stop coughing."

She coughed apologetically.

"So I had to come down to Palm Point and live in a cabin there, and—it's crowded all the time with tourists, and I just wanted to be alone. So I came over to Shell Key, to look at it, meaning to camp out here for a week if—well, if there was no one here."

"And then go back to teaching?"

"And then go back to teaching," she answered sadly.

"I'm much like you," said Hale. "I was threatened with the same trouble, only I had just a hundred dollars left when my fare was paid. So I bought Shell Key—an acre and a half—for twenty dollars down, purchased fifty dollars' worth of food and implements and started—but come, and I'll show you."

He led her to the highest peak of his domain. Through the palm-trees the girl saw a clearing of a quarter of an acre, in which corn, tomatoes, and other esculents were flourishing.

"I'm going to get a nunny when I sell my corn," said Hale.

"And you mean to live here always?"

"Either that or go back to clerking, yes. I'm going to make Shell Key the most highly intensified example of truck farming in the world. And I'm going to raid an orange plantation five miles down the coast on the next dark night, and bring back sucklings. They grow the best navels in the world there."

Slowly they went back. "You seem to have made a little island paradise here," said the girl.

"A kingdom—a world," he answered. "I wouldn't go back to the world outside for anything."

"And I," she said, "must go to take up my work in the world again. Each of us to his fate."

"Yes," he answered.

"Perhaps I'll row across to Palm Point some afternoon and call on you."

"I've only got one more week," she said. "And I'd rather you wouldn't."

"Why not?"

"It's—too sad, isn't it. I mean"—he saw that her eyes were full of tears—"giving up one's dreams."

"We all have to give up our dreams, I suppose," he said.

"But you have your dream."

"Not all of it."

They were upon the beach now. She turned and looked at him. "What dream have you had to abandon?" she asked.

"Oh, every man's dream, I suppose," he answered.

"The dream of finding some one to share my kingdom with me. I've often thought of her. She has gray eyes and coppery hair."

"And you've abandoned that dream?"

"I've never found her." His look was unmistakable. And she could amuse herself no longer with him.

"I ought to have told you," she said penitently. "My husband's at Palm Point. He's an invalid, and—and we don't care for each other at all, but that—binds us, you know."

From the summit of his island kingdom Hale watched the boat receding.

Multiplication.

Josiah White died in 1804 at Rockingham, Vt. At death he had 380 direct descendants. A check-up shows that at least 3,000 direct descendants of Josiah have entered the world up to the present time. This shows the wisdom of death in nature's scheme of things. Without death earth would become so thickly populated that its whole surface would be a closely packed crowd of standing-up humans. We have to die to make room for new-comers.

Suited to Everyone

Here is a gift bag that may be depended on to please anyone who is fortunate enough to receive it and is suited to either men or women. It will answer many purposes and requires only a basket, a length of silk for the top, silk cord for hangers and small silk roses for trimming, to make it. In larger sizes it makes an attractive laundry bag.

Gift Ribbons

Each year brings in new sashes, girdles, hair-bows and a long list of other belongings to replace those that have had their bright day and passed with the year. Two ribbon girdles, as pictured here, make charming gifts. One of them is made of narrow satin ribbon bordered with a tinsel ribbon and decorated with ribbon flowers. The other is a wide sash of two-toned satin ribbon with loops at each side and a knot at the back.

The Scarlet Woman

By MYRA C. LANE

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

May Callender had come back from her city job and brought a babe of three months with her. The news was all over Hillside in the twinkling of an eye. She had given up stenography, it appeared, and gone back to her father's cottage to keep house for him. What did he think? What did Joe Norris think—Joe, now representing his firm on a business trip West; Joe, who was engaged to her?

"Why, it's this here way," explained old Callender, a mild, lean, elderly man, who suffered from rheumatism. "That ain't May's baby. She adopted it from the Home for Fresh Air for Kids for the summer, so's to give it a chance like, because it's kinder peaked."

"Oh, Mr. Callender, how can a man of the world like yourself be taken in by such nonsense?" demanded Mrs. Rhomb, the deacon's wife. "Can't you see for yourself? What would a girl like May be wanting with a baby, when she's going to be married to Joe when he comes back?"

"I guess there'll be one wedding put off," sneered Hy Pannick, the life insurance agent.

It was certainly scandalous. May should have put the infant in a home and hidden her shame in the city, all agreed, instead of polluting Hillside with her presence. Why, there were young folks in Hillside who knew May, and four churches.

And then, what made it worse than anything, May was so brazen. See her walk into Mr. Pannick's shop, as bold as brass, and ordering—yes, ordering groceries, instead of creeping in and paying her money over the counter humbly. And the child on her arm! That bent creation!

The Reverend Hotfoot stopped her in the street one day. "Aheui, Miss Callender—"

He snarled the word "Miss" as if it were a little irregular.

"Oh, Mr. Hotfoot! Yes, that's the kid I adopted for the summer. Pretty boy, isn't he?"

"Oh, Miss Callender, is it wise, is it right to appear in public carrying the child?" Mr. Hotfoot pleaded. "All things are lawful, but all things are not expedient—you understand? There are young people in Hillside—"

"This is the child I adopted, Mr. Hotfoot," said May Callender, emphasizing the "adopted."

"Oh, yes, to be sure," said Mr. Hotfoot, beating a retreat. He told his congregation after that she had flown at him like a wildcat.

But what would Joe Norris say—Joe, now on his homeward trip? Joe was pretty hot-tempered. It was the brazenness of the hussy, coming back with it!

And then—there was that hot summer night when it was taken so ill, and May was raging like a mad thing. Doctor Hollis said, for fear one of those convulsions would carry it off. Oh, yes, Hillside wasn't composed of fools.

Old Mr. Callender, under May's thumb, meekly submitted to her rule. Privately he believed what the world believed, but he didn't dare express himself, and May certainly was some housekeeper.

Katie Jackson, whom Joe had once gone with, was especially vindictive. She was at the head of the organization which ignored May in the street for the sake of decency, and Mr. Hotfoot's sermon that first Sunday after May's return was really Katie Jackson's working. Katie was the Reverend Hotfoot's niece.

But what would Joe say? Joe was in Chicago; he was in Detroit; he was in New York; he was expected on Monday evening—here he is at the station, six feet high, nearly as broad, sun-burned, happy, carrying a grip with a practiced hand.

"Oh, Mr. Norris, it is sad news that I have to tell you," Mr. Hotfoot led Joe aside. "You must not take any impetuous action, my dear Mr. Norris. There are loving hearts in Hillside that will do their best to heal this wound."

Joe had at first burst out laughing, then he became bewildered, then angry.

May knew what train he was coming on, but it was too hot to leave Baby, and he needed constant attention. So she just sat beside his cot and waited for Joe.

Joe strode along at his five-mile gait, perplexed, wondering. Of course he didn't doubt. But—

"Say, May," he said as he kissed her, "what's all this infernal trouble about you in town? That old humbug Hotfoot was on my trail as soon as I made the depot. That the kid? Mighty fine kid, only—why, say, May, we can't afford to start our family so darned quick, can we?"

"It's only for the summer, Joe," answered May. "I've got to return him to the Home for Fresh Air for Kids in September."

"But what's the idea?"

"Why, Joe, darling, I—you know I wanted to find out whether I really had the grit to get married when it would mean keeping house and looking after a sick child at the same time—"

"You little brick!"

"And—and—it's hard, but—I guess it's all right, Joe."

PROHIBITION AND THE PRESENT AMAZING PROSPERITY

The present situation has its black spots, but all in all, we are in the midst of the most general prosperity any nation has ever enjoyed.

The mere fact that there are over ten million automobiles in this country is amazing. Every tenth person in the nation owns an automobile. There is a car for every two families and, viewing the situation over a period of months it is hard for the automobile factories to turn them out fast enough.

Look at the cost of building. A modern home costs ten thousand dollars to erect. A few years ago, few men of moderate means would have felt justified in spending ten thousand dollars for a home. Today, building is proceeding apace despite the exorbitant prices. Plumbers and machine workers, small tradesmen and artisans are erecting houses that cost ten, twelve and even fifteen thousand dollars.

More milk is being consumed by the children than ever before. Tropical fruits are on every table. The finest cuts are in demand at the meat markets.

Look into the colleges. Full to the doors and running over. At some of our institutions they are discussing the advisability of selecting those who are to be granted admission. A few years ago, practically no college was full to capacity and anyone was admitted who could show good character and adequate previous instruction.

The laboring people of this country are so far ahead of their situation a few years ago that the truth is hard to realize and it isn't simply because they are making more money. It is because they are making better use of the money they get.

The present prosperity of this country is based principally upon the fact that we are saving five billion dollars a year which would be wasted in drink if we had the saloon. Whitley County Republican

SCHOOLS, TEACHERS AND PATRONS

There is existing a condition in our Public Schools to-day different from any experience we have had heretofore. At the 1922 session of the Legislature an act was passed making a seven months school term. This Legislative body seemed to forget, or at least it did not provide for any increase in pay for the teachers in the Public Schools. So, after combining the state fund which is about $35,000 and 50 per cent of the county school fund which is about $10,000, this gives the total amount of funds available with which to pay the teachers, giving an average monthly salary of about $66.00. In addition to the low salary some teachers have had to pay $1.00 per day for board. We can readily see that teachers in the Public Schools are very heroic.

In view of the fact that Knox County now has twelve schools with out teachers, it seems as if it is time that we begin to work out some plan whereby every girl and boy in this county can at last have the privilege of going to school. Thus I venture to make the following suggestions:

(a) Where roads and conditions will permit, combine two or more schools into one school with at least two rooms and two teachers which will enable the grades to be divided and more efficient teaching to be done. This will also lessen the expense of up-keep since one school building and one wall are cheaper to maintain than two or more.

(b) Where schools are very small and can be united into one school it will increase interest on the part of the school and the teacher, which combination will also save the cost of one teacher.

(c) More visitation on the part of patrons will help much to encourage the teacher and students. A don't-care disposition on the part of an individual will develop slovenliness. A don't-care disposition on the part of a community is very poor encouragement to your teacher who is laboring under difficulties to make better the future happiness and welfare of those who in ten years from now will either condemn us or praise us for making life just what it will be to them at that time.

Then is it not time that there be more rigid discipline on the part of parents, more interest in schools and church, and a united effort on the part of all to reduce the percentage of crime and idleness in the County of Knox?

COPPER SUBMARINE CAPTURED AT GRAYS

A copper submarine still which lifted its periscope on the horizon was captured by submarine destroyers last week near Grays. The sub is a first class vessel, with a cargo carrying capacity of some sixty gallons. Its destructive power was horrible, being capable of swamping many of the craft plying between the shores of this world and those of eternity. By a curious coincidence the skipper of the deadly craft is alleged to be Davy Jones and bold sailors who are lost at sea are said to go to Davy Jones' locker. Happily the crew of the good ship Volstead, Iko Taylor, Clark Smith and John Lenville, prevented further damage from this outlaw of the sea of life. Another of the alleged crew of the submarine was also captured and placed in jail.
